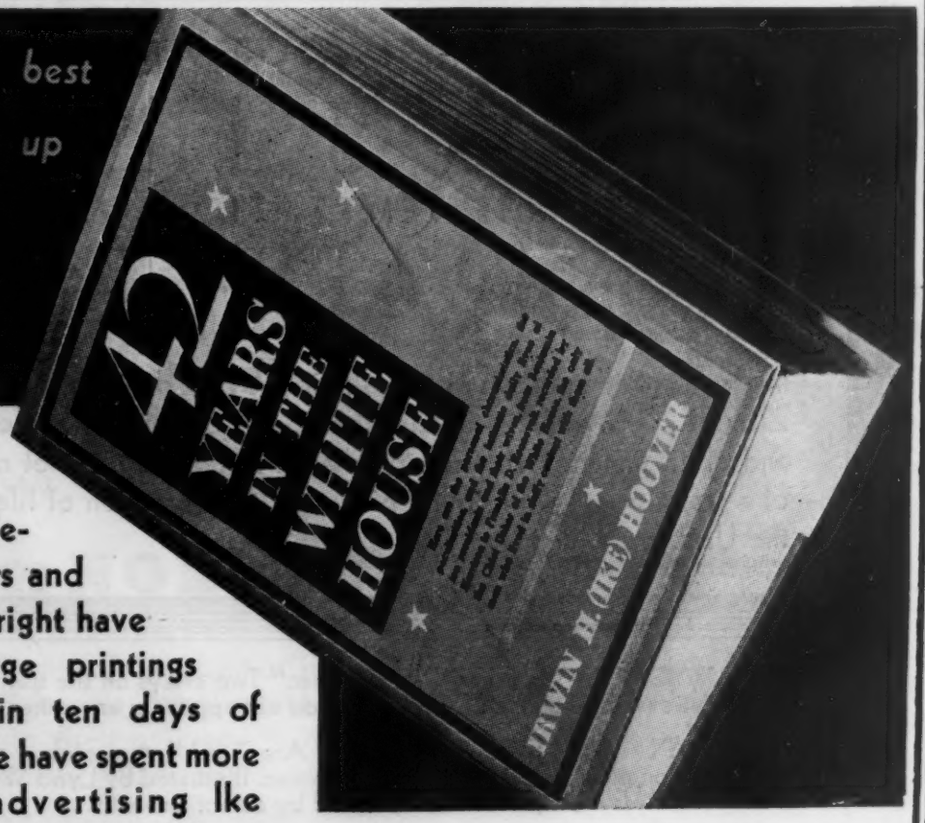
"If it isn't a best seller I give up guessing."
—Herschell Brickell



You are right, Mr. Brickell! Reviews like yours and the one to the right have made four large printings necessary within ten days of publication. We have spent more than $6,000 advertising Ike Hoover's book already and we have just started a new campaign in the belief that this is bound to be the big non-fiction title of the Fall.

"If Walter Winchell and Samuel Pepys had been hiding under White House davenports they could not have written a better extended gossip column than this masterpiece of subtly indiscreet revelations."

TO THE

Booksellers of America

A REPORT...

Analysis of trade statistics, drawn by our travellers from every section of the country, indicate that the upsurge in book sales since August 1st is no flash in the pan. Judged by every factor offered by experience, the betterment is to continue, and probably increase, through the remainder of the year.

Macmillan is prepared, with the strongest Fall List in its long history, fully supported by consistent, planned sales promotion, to assist you in reaping your share of this increasing business.

Consider These Potent Sales Builders:

FICTION

Mary Ellen Chase's MARY PETERS, two printings of ten thousand before publication, two large printings since its publication September 25, and gathering momentum daily. • Doris Leslie's FULL FLAVOUR, four large printings, selling at the rate of better than a copy a minute of each business day since day of publication. First on best seller list in Chicago and San Francisco. Sixth on Herald Tribune National Listing, and gaining fast. • Eiluned Lewis' DEW ON THE GRASS, just out, but already nominated as one of the loveliest books of the season. • John Masefield's THE TAKING OF THE GRY, coming October 16. Likely to repeat the remarkable success of BIRD OF DAWNING, and priced only $1.75.

NON-FICTION

H. G. Wells' EXPERIMENT IN AUTOBIOGRAPHY will be out October 26. November Book-of-the-Month Club selection. We take a bow at Simon and Schuster's gracious compliment, "Gentlemen, a great book," which Essandess ran in their column. • A. J. A. Symons' THE QUEST FOR CORVO, a fascinating and remarkable book. Steadily moving toward the success predicted for it. • John A. & Alan Lomax AMERICAN BALLADS AND FOLK SONGS, coming October 23. A book to watch for. It is $5.00, and it will sell. • Robert P. Tristram Coffin's LOST PARADISE, the type of book that will certainly please your very special lists.

"Captain Caution"

the biggest, best-selling, most richly readable novel in America's great historical saga

—by

KENNETH ROBERTS

"I prophesy it will be hailed as a great classic of the sea."
—Rupert Hughes.

"Absorbing, skillful, conscientious, written in a prose of distinction."
—Burton Rascoe.

In days of slack stock sales, the perennial, week-after-week, never-failing quantity orders for ARUNDEL, THE LIVELY LADY, and RABBLE IN ARMS are an inspiration to publisher and bookseller alike. Yet we firmly believe that the market for these great books has not yet been scratched, and that the publication of CAPTAIN CAUTION—a rich, full-blooded story, covering a hither-to unknown phase of American participation in the War of 1812—will carry the whole property to new heights. This novel, and the other three—$2.50 each—will be backed by a country-wide advertising schedule, great publicity, and a whispering campaign from a host of fans, many of them people of national note.

Doubleday, Doran

novelist and world reporter, who with such great best-sellers as THE MIDDLE OF THE ROAD and THE AGE OF REASON has brought sympathy and understanding to the bewilderment and unrest in modern life, and whose THE CROSS OF PEACE, published last Spring, remains constantly in demand, a novel that is also a gallant crusade for peace—has now, in interviewed Europe's unknown men and women—from farm and factory, village and Capital, in seven countries—on their hopes and fears for the smouldering future.

"Looking back at my journey now," writes Sir Philip, "I am astonished at the way in which a number of men and women did talk to me with a frankness and sincerity which was sometimes dangerous to them and which was often illuminating, and I marvel at the intelligence of these people of humble class whom I met on the wayside and in the marketplace. They looked at life with shrewd eyes. They were realists."

The story of a trip by car through France, Switzerland, Austria, Hungary, Germany and The Saar—illustrated with twenty lovely pencil sketches by E. Lander, drawn on the spot and reproduced in lithograph. A 6⅛" x 9¼" volume, bound in rich blue cloth, stamped in black and gold. THE BIG NON-FICTION BOOK FOR CHRISTMAS. $3.00

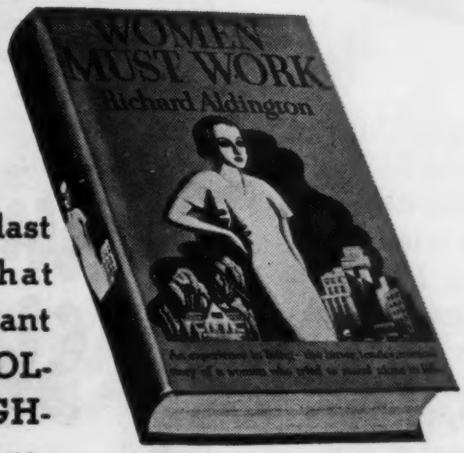
"Modern in tone — may be Richard Aldington's best novel to date"

— cables FRANK SWINNERTON to the Chicago Tribune



WITH his last two books — that savage and brilliant tragedy, THE COLONEL'S DAUGHTER, and the profound and tragically beautiful ALL MEN ARE ENEMIES, Richard Aldington has drawn two of the most remarkable portraits of women in modern life. Both novels were best sellers.

Etta Morison, in WOMEN MUST WORK, is a third woman, a modern woman — memorable in her longing to stand alone in life — made restless by the weltgeist of her time. She says: "Clever men make experiments in science. I'm making an experiment in living. To see if a woman starting from little enough can stand alone in life."

WOMEN MUST WORK has a wider appeal, a deeper reality, than any of Richard Aldington's novels. It will be a best-seller.

Best book of travel since "THE GENTLEMAN IN THE PARLOUR..."

Brooks Atkinson

—eminent Dramatic Critic of the New York Times and formerly Editor of the Times Book Review—had no idea of going on a long holiday trip, but fate—and his dog—ordered his destiny. One day, taking his police dog for a run, he encountered at an East River pier that shining name, "THE CINGALESE PRINCE—LONDON." When next the freighter sailed on a trip around the world, Mr. Atkinson was aboard, with a big diary in which each day he wrote about the things that interested him most—people, places, ideas. The result is more like Maugham's "The Gentleman in the Parlour" than anything we know. It is not only a book of travel, but a philosopher's book of adventure.

Anne Shannon Monroe

"Singing in the Rain" and "The Hearth of Happiness" have been sold to many thousands of readers and have perhaps proved the source of comfort and inspiration to more people than any books published within twenty years. Miss Monroe's new book—composed of seventeen winning essays—gets down to the heart of human troubles and points clearly practical ways out of difficulties. You may recommend it as the perfect "book of happiness" for individuals—for those who are ill—for elderly people—and as a grateful gift for Christmas.

ANNOUNCE WITH PLEASURE
A MOST UNUSUAL NOVEL...

A Pin to See the Peepshow

BY

F. TENNYSON JESSE

Author of TOM FOOL and THE LACQUER LADY

No two of Miss Jesse's books are alike. This is supposed to be bad for trade, but we venture to think that it will be good for posterity. Her previous books have dealt with Cornish farm life, with the sea in the days of sail, and with Burma in the Eighties of the last Century when the British occupied that country.

Her present book will be a complete surprise. Post-War in period, it deals with a woman who lives in suburban London and who works in a smart dress shop in Mayfair; and between these two poles there is the whole gamut of emotion. It may not be too much to say that this story of a woman's mind and body may prove to be the English "Madame Bovary."

Approximately 168,000 words in length—lavish in scene and action—a big book in every way, and one which we predict with absolute faith will be impossible to keep off the best-seller lists. Coming Nov. 7th—$2.50.

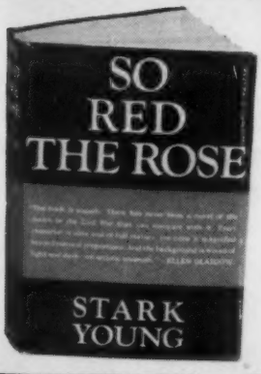
Another Scribner Year!"

Selected titles from the strongest-selling Scribner list in years. Some are established as national best-sellers. The others are on the way. And their sales certainty is reflected in every title on the Scribner Fall list.



So Red the Rose

by Stark Young

For three months the best-selling novel in America. Twelve big printings to October 1 with the fiftieth thousand on its way out. Headed for a hundred thousand by Christmas. $2.50

One's Company

by Peter Fleming

author of "Brazilian Adventure"

The leading travel and adventure book of the year—and the only one on the best-selling lists. "As entertaining as 'Brazilian Adventure,'" says The New York Times of this lively and exciting narrative of a journey to China. Profusely illustrated from photographs. Second Big Printing. $2.75

Leaders in Every Field

"Another Scribner Year!"

R. E. Lee: A Biography

by Douglas Southall Freeman

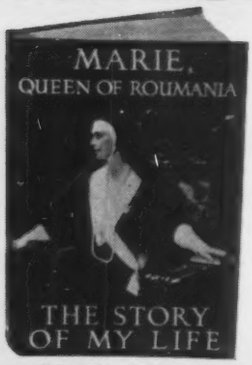
The most important biography of the year—and of years to come. The last word on its great subject, with a vast amount of new material gathered in twenty years of research. Two volumes this Fall, the final two next Spring. Each volume profusely illustrated, $3.75. Two volumes boxed, $7.50

The Challenge to Liberty

by Herbert Hoover

Thirty-first President of the United States

First printing, 84,500! A book that packs more arguments per page than anything published this year. People of all political complexions, Rep., Dem., pro-or-anti-New Deal can read it with profit—and are doing so. $1.75



The Story of My Life

by Marie, Queen of Roumania

The most appealing autobiography of the year. An intimate portrait gallery of European royalty during the past half century. A vivid story, one that every reader will enjoy. Women especially are a sure market. With scores of interesting pictures. 615 pages. $4.00

America's Tragedy

by James Truslow Adams

author of "The March of Democracy," etc.

The outstanding historical volume of the season. "Mr. Adams's best book," Charles Willis Thompson calls it in The New York Sun. A vivid and authoritative study of the growth of Sectionalism in America. Two big printings before it was a week old and on the best-seller lists. $3.00

Leaders in Every Field

Leaders in Every Field

The Casino Murder Case

The New Philo Vance Detective Story

by S. S. Van Dine

At the top of the year's detective stories. Rated "A.A.A." by Donald Gordon, called "the best of the recent Van Dines" by The New York Times which says it "moves more rapidly than any of the others"—and that applies to sales as well as action. $2.00

Aleck Maury: Sportsman

by Caroline Gordon

The unsurpassed novel of the outdoors. As a "sporting novel" it has all the charm and appeal of books like Sassoon's "Memoirs of a Fox Hunting Man"; and as a story it's first-rate American fiction. Fishermen and hunters will eat it up. $2.50

This Woman and This Man

by Katherine Newlin Burt

A top-notcher for sheer entertainment. Mrs. Burt has a large and constantly growing popular following. This adventure-romance of the Western mountains, full of action and tense situations, is the author at her best. $2.00

End of the Chapter

"Maid in Waiting"; "Flowering Wilderness"; "One More River"

by John Galsworthy

Certain to be the best-selling "omnibus" volume of the Fall. Three full-length novels, so closely related that they read like one long story, written in Galsworthy's most popular style, and handsomely printed and bound. 800 pages. $3.00

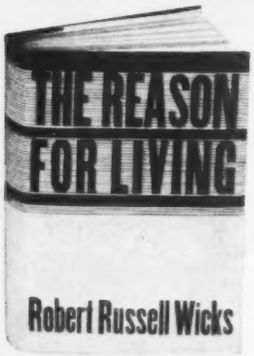
Selected and edited by

William Lyon Phelps

An unequalled anthology of poetry, new and old. A companion volume to last year's successful "What I Like in Prose." The Phelps audience is nation-wide and loyal, and this collection is one that every poetry-lover will want to own. $2.75



The Reason for Living

by Robert Russell Wicks

Straight from the shoulder answers to the most persistent and troublous questions about this puzzling modern life of ours, written out of years of experience in dealing with the spiritual problems of men and women. $2.00

Adventures of de Marbot edited and illustrated

by John W. Thomason, Jr.

A double-barrelled sales getter. Thrilling exploits of a Napoleonic soldier who fought in all the great battles of the Empire and dozens of Maj. Thomason's most brilliant drawings. A sure seller for men—and older boys. $2.50

Whalers of the Midnight Sun

by Alan Villiers

author of "Grain Race," etc.

Dear Mr. Macrae:
We are with you hook, line and sinker on "Man With A Bull-Tongue Plow." It is without doubt the finest verse in this country since "John Brown's Body" and need not take any back seat for that grand book.

We would like fifty copies of "Man With A Bull-Tongue Plow" and twenty five copies of "Tents in Mongolia" which to our minds is the finest of all the Asiatic books, and should be a natural.

Please ship Economy Fast Freight and we will have a covering order ready.

Any novel by Rolland has a certain assured sale: and a much larger market can be reached by the aggressive book-seller. The thousands of buyers of Jean-Christophe are all prospects for this book.

A World in Birth is an independent novel, and an unusually powerful one: it also completes the great Soul Enchanted, a cycle that may now challenge comparison with Jean-Christophe.

And consider the sales record of Jean-Christophe. The first volume was published in 1910, the last in 1913. In 1916, six years after publication, the first volume sold more than three times as many copies as it had the year of its publication. And in 1925, sales had fallen only 458 copies below this maximum. Issued since in a one-volume edition, Jean-Christophe has gone on year after year making money for you and for us.

With your help, The Soul Enchanted may do the same.

Elsie Robinson's own story

"I WOULDN'T KNOW whether it's literature or not—this thing I've done. It went so much deeper, was so much more urgent than a desire to write . . .

"You know the sort of talk that goes on inside you constantly, talk the world never hears but which seems far nearer the real you than the words you utter? As, of course, it is. For your spoken words are necessarily modified by endless fears and desires—but that secret conversation is the raw truth. And many a time you've thought—'If I only dared show myself as I really am, why then—'

"You've left the sentence unfinished, not knowing exactly what would happen if you did dare. But of this you were sure—such release would make you over—give you a fresh start—bring back that sense of adventure which life has somehow lost.

"Many a time you've said that—as I have. So I did! Chucked all thought of consequences—just stood up and shouted it all out, into the dark. Not reckoning what might return, hardly caring. And suddenly there was this incredible answering—all those thousands of strangers giving themselves to me because I had dared give myself to them!

"That's why I say that I don't know or care whether it's literature. It isn't the book that matters—nor the woman in it. It's what that book does to other people—the way the truth in it releases other lives, a sort of wild, joyous freedom and courage, particularly now when things seem such a blind alley. That's what counts."

A personal statement to the book trade of America such as we have never made before about any book.

We believe that The Forty Days of Musa Dagh by Franz Werfel is the greatest combination of enduring literature and magnificent story that we have ever published or that has been published in our time.

We believe that this opinion will be shared by booksellers and critics.

We feel certain, as we have never felt before, of a huge and lasting sale.

We base these opinions on the advance reports that came to us from Europe—on the first reading in our office by B. W. Huebsch—on the subsequent reading by editors, salesmen, advertising agency executives, our wives and several friends.

We snatched galleys as they came from the printer; we came late to work from all-night reading. The book had an overwhelming effect on us—we could talk of nothing else.

We are asking the trade for the biggest advance sale they've ever given us. We're going to invest our money in promotion on a scale we've never before attempted.

We think that after nearly ten years of honest publishing, we can count on most booksellers to appreciate the significance of what we say here.

We have prepared a special edition, for the trade and the press, of 750 free copies. One is yours for the asking, if you ask in time. On its 832 pages we rest our case. The Forty Days of Musa Dagh will be published on November 30th at $3.00 and sold to you under the Viking Protection Plan.

★ LONDON and NEW YORK were his hunting grounds for forty years.

★ His reminiscences like Rothenstein's "Men and Memories," will be the most popular book of memoirs for the Christmas trade.

AUTHOR

By Grant Richards

★ Here is a natural for every customer who bought "Men and Memories." Richards has been described as "the most original and most interesting publisher of his time." At 26 he founded the firm of Grant Richards. He was the first publisher of Thomas Burke, G. K. Chesterton, Warwick Deeping, James Joyce, John Masefield, Alfred Noyes and Alec Waugh. He published Shaw's plays when no other publisher would risk a dollar on them. He made his own first novel, "Caviare," a best seller. He made a small fortune on Bairnsfather's "Bullets and Billets" and lost money on Rothenstein's "English Portraits." He brought out "A Shropshire Lad," the most famous volume of poetry of the century. His book is full of delightful anecdotes of his forty years among the authors on both sides of the Atlantic. Across his pages move the most glittering names of the literary world—Galsworthy, Wells, Dreiser, Frank Norris, George Moore and a host of others.

To be Published by COWARD-McCANN, Inc.

his "Big Game"

To him BERNARD SHAW wrote:

"You should call your book The Tragedy of a Publisher who Allowed Himself to Fall in Love with Literature. The publisher who does that, like the picture dealer who likes pictures or the schoolmistress who gets fond of her pupils, is foredoomed."

HUNTING

FRANK SWINNERTON: "A good and delightful book. I can highly commend it."

THEODORE DREISER: "I have never encountered a more remarkable or fascinating man than Grant Richards. His is the genius temperament that has drawn into his circle the gifted and the interesting in all walks. He has gone everywhere, known everyone and rightly."

THE LONDON TIMES: "Rich and rare, candid and entertaining, one reads it with enthralled interest."

Dreiser booklet FREE:

We have reprinted in a separate booklet the chapter on Theodore Dreiser. Copies are available on request to send to your customers to solicit advance orders. It tells of the beginning of the association between Richards and Dreiser, their great friendship—and its unfortunate ending. For the last 20 years they have "exchanged a bare half-dozen words." Yet see what Dreiser says of Richards in the adjoining column.

IRVING KEATS,

I believe Salten has written a book here that will have a wide appeal. I am going to recommend it especially to boys and girls. They are bound to like Florian and Bosco.

MILDRED BURGESS, The Bookshop for Boys and Girls, Boston, Mass.:

MRS. ANN DeARMAND, DeArmand's Bookshop, Davenport, Iowa:
I started reading Florian at midnight Saturday and finished it five-thirty Sunday morning. It held my interest throughout. Mr. Salten's sensitive and imaginative understanding of animals is exceptional. This will have an appeal for many people.

EDMUND S. McCAWLEY, E. S. McCawley & Co., Inc., Haverford, Pa.:
I think Florian has a wide market, fully as wide as Bambi, because of its simple charm and its wide sentimental appeal. My seventeen-year-old daughter read it at one sitting and was delighted with it.

WALTER PETTIBONE, Stewart's Bookstore, Indianapolis, Indiana:
I have just finished that remarkable book Florian. It is a very beautifully written piece of work, carrying all the earmarks of the most perfect of craftsmanship. We will do our part in putting it over to the public.

FRANK CLOUGH, Fred Harvey, Kansas City, Mo.:
I enjoyed Florian immensely. I think it is most interesting and it should command a big sale. The character of Anton is in my opinion without parallel. Any lover of horses or dogs will enjoy reading this book.
I hope you will do well with Florian. We will do our part.

E. A. HIGGINS, Herzfeld-Phillipson Co., Boston Store, Milwaukee, Wis., says:
I have just finished reading Florian for the second time. I certainly enjoyed it and think that you have a very big book in it.

ELSIE W. STOKES, Stokes and Stockell, Nashville, Tenn.:
Felix Salten is an artist. No work by him is unimportant, but his new novel, Florian, has a surer appeal than its predecessor, Bambi, because of the historical and human interest.
It is amazing that a man could have the perfect understanding that characterizes Salten's stories, for he knows not only the physical habits but the psychological reactions. Salten's prose has a beauty and simplicity that makes it valuable for itself alone. For those who care greatly for horses, Florian will be rare experience.
It is rarely beautiful and very interesting. The lovely format is appropriate for this masterpiece of prose.

J. KRONISH, Edward P. Judd Company, New Haven, Conn.:
While Florian hasn't the woodsy flavour of Bambi still the utterly beautiful romantic strain and the royal background may well win for Salten a new audience for this book. And with horse lovers still so numerous, Florian is bound to win many hearts. Moreover, there is again the unlimited market of young people which Bambi reached and Florian will just as surely.

TESS M. CRAGER, Basement Book Shop and Library, New Orleans, La.:
I like Florian enormously. I have never been a particularly ardent admirer of Felix Salten's, having been one of those lost souls who did not wax rapturous over Bambi, but I do think that Florian is far better than anything he has ever written.
Naturally Salten is most successful in depicting Florian and Bosco. That is his forte and he is unsurpassed at it. For that reason his people interested me most. Anton, Gruber and Neustift were amazingly well done. Salten's style is distinctive and has real beauty.

BEATRICE BOSLEY, Britannica Book Shop, New York City, N. Y.:
We in the Book Shop think Florian should prove to be one of the best Holiday Season sellers that has ever been published.
Frankly, we do not quite know how to praise the book highly enough, but we want you to know that we think it a magnificent piece of work and hope with all our hearts that it will have the success it deserves.

MABEL ZAHN, Charles Sessler, Philadelphia, Pa.:
I am immensely interested in the method by which this historical tale is told.

GILBERT E. GOVAN,

T. H. Payne Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.:

Florian was sent to a reviewer who is an enthusiastic horsewoman. Her comment, which I have just received, is that she has alternately "thrilled and wept," and that it is even better than Bambi.

JOHN G. KIDD,

John G. Kidd & Son, Inc., Cincinnati, Ohio:

Florian is a grand book and there is no reason why we should not successfully market it here. I have no doubt that you will have a very large and insistent demand.

H. V. KORNER,

Korner & Wood, Cleveland, Ohio:

I think you have a fine book in Florian. I have always considered Bambi one of the most delightful books I have ever read, and own copies of three editions. It seems to me that Florian should duplicate the success of Bambi.

Joseph give an added interest. The book is really charming and will sell well.

HAZEL R. CLIFTON, Priscilla Guthrie's Shop, Pittsburgh, Pa.:

I liked Florian immensely. It is a most delightful book with many more points of interest than his earlier stories. I am quite sure it will have a splendid sale.

P. J. SEFRANKA, Famous-Barr Company, St. Louis, Mo.:

I enjoyed Florian immensely. I believe it will have a steady sale with the better class of readers. We shall do all we can to promote it.

G. J. DWYER, Dwyer's Book Shop, Salt Lake City, Utah:

I enjoyed Florian very much.

MISS L. H. MUSGROVE, Joske Brothers, San Antonio, Texas:

Florian is a charming book. I wish I had time to read it again right away.

HELEN M. MARTIN, Paul Elder & Company, San Francisco, Calif.:

I took Florian home last night and became absorbed completely in the story through Florian's eyes of the last days of the Austrian Empire. I do think it should have a splendid sale and you can count on us to do all we can for it.

CHARLES B. JAMESON, Curtis Lindsay, San Jose, Calif.:

When I began Florian it was with the usual misgivings I have for animal stories—loathe and despise 'em—but, as with Bambi, I found this one irresistible.

Being a fool about horses, Florian thrilled me beyond words. My scalp and neck are sore with tingling, and my eyes still smart from the mist that rose with the pages of beauty and tragedy.

That any man, even Salten, is able to put down in cold words that exquisite understanding between man and horse, and horse and dog, and dog and man, makes me breathless. If as much has been lost in translation as Erich Posselt says, it is better so; were the book any better it would be beyond human endurance.

MRS. W. W. OSBORNE, Osborne's Book Store, Santa Barbara, Calif.:

I loved Florian. The horse—Bosco—and Anton seem such real beings. Here you are carried along filled with the very joy of life as these animals express themselves, seeing and feeling their various experiences, and gradually growing old along with them until at the end one feels so lost—and that Florian proud and glorious to the last goes marching on—where? It makes me sad—that book. Yet it is a choice thing.

ROGER BOUTELL, Tecolote Book Shop, Santa Barbara, Calif.:

Florian has been read with real pleasure and satisfaction by all of us here. We think that the book combines unusual elements in a highly successful form, and should consequently have every success. We shall do all we can to push the book here.

R. M. MacDONALD, The Puget Sound News Company, Seattle, Washington:

We believe Florian will be of great interest to the people who read Bambi, and in addition, to the many lovers of horses.

HARRY HARTMAN, Bookseller, Seattle, Washington:

Florian is not just the appealing story of a great horse, but the story of the greatness and weakness of Austria told by a man who can interpret the simplicity of a noble animal as well as the complexity of less noble men.

V. M. SCHENCK, H. R. Huntting Company, Inc., Springfield, Mass.:

Florian is a very excellent book.

OLIVE B. DYER, Butler's Inc., Wilmington, Del.:

I have just finished reading Florian and enjoyed it very much. It is an excellent story.

CATHERINE S. DEVERS, The Book Shop, York, Pa.:

I have found Florian as perfect a piece of literature as I expected it to be. It is at once a book you want to linger over, to absorb the regal atmosphere and superb beauty of old Austria; and one you must read continuously just because it is so captivating.

If I Were a Bookseller

The First of a Series of Articles in Which Sales Managers Tell How Special Books May Be Promoted

J. A. McKAUGHAN

Advertising Manager, John Day, Reynal & Hitchcock and Blue Ribbon Books

On every publisher's list, along with the novels, biographies and mystery stories, which may be anybody's meat, which will appeal equally to the debutante or her grandmother, there are some books which the bookseller often finds hard to sell because they only appeal to the specialist. There is "The Mother's Encyclopedia" for example. The debutante is not yet interested and grandma has ceased to care, but there are mothers to whom the bookseller can sell the book. The publisher has all these mothers in mind when he publishes the book, and Mr. McKaughan tells how he would reach them if he were a bookseller. This is the first of a series by publishers on how to sell special books. The next will be written by Alexander Blanton, sales manager of Macmillan.

I HAVE NEVER SOLD a book to anyone. It is rarely that I see the inside of a bookstore. Called quite explicitly, in the patois of my premises, "the goddam advertising department," I know nothing whatever about the reasons which direct customers to the loaded counters of the bookstores and impel them to make a selection from the merchandise displayed there. Apparently there are some thousands of book addicts in America, just as there are an equal number of heroin addicts, both of them requiring a periodic shot in the arm for their continuing happiness. But I wouldn't know how to give 'em the needle.

If I should wake up from a horrible nightmare sometime and find that I really was a bookseller, and that Joe Carroll had just come in with "The Mother's Encyclopedia," I'd have to go into prayer and meditation before I bought any.

What would I do with a book like that? As a hypothetical bookseller, my ideas, laid end to end, would look something like this:

1. Make my wife, if any, read it. Undoubtedly she would find in it the ways to dissuade little George from ever opening a bookstore and to cultivate to its fruition his desire to be a big fireman. Fifteen years from now, when I wanted to retire, he could join Alexander Woollcott and fiddle while Mr. Chips burned.
2. Make my clerks read it. The 959 pages of parental problems illuminated by more than 100 experts should make their own worries look like Marvin Owen's batting average.
3. Make myself read the blurb, the index, and the introduction, which is as near to any effervescent youngster as I ever want to stand in loco parentis.
4. Dictate a selling-talk to my secretary, stressing the following points gleaned from the publisher's catalog and publicity notes:
   (a) When the editors of The Parents' Magazine asked the Library of Congress if there were any encyclopedia covering the whole field of problems which agitate parents, the answer of the largest library in America was "no." Therefore, no other volume similar to this one can be found in the English language. Parents would have to search through scores of volumes to find the information compressed into this encyclopedia.

(b) The Parents' Magazine, edited by Clara Savage Littledale, has been one of the most spectacular successes of the past ten years. Its 333,000 circulation has been won entirely through the merit of its editorial content, which consists wholly of advice on the care and training of children. The editors obviously know what parents need. And they have compiled and edited "The Mother's Encyclopedia." There could hardly be a finer recommendation of its usefulness.

(c) Independent critics have said: "It is the best, most modern, most authoritative information on care and training of children."—New York Times. "Speaking as one who, like David Copperfield's Mrs. Crupp, has been a mother myself, I don't see how this compendium could be greatly bettered for its particular purpose." —May Lamberton Becker, New York Herald Tribune. That's good selling talk for any clerk. (Adv't—Reynal & Hitchcock, Inc.)

(d) The size of the book and the bargain appeal: 959 pages; 1400 subjects; 27 illustrations. Full buckram binding, with reinforcing headbands, which should make the book outlast almost any mother, unless she were bound in leather.

(e) The price of $3.00. Less than any family physician would charge for a visit. Half of what it is worth to silence a temper tantrum—my friends say. Virtually nothing, if the book helps a parent in rearing a normal child. The price should never be an obstacle to a sale.

5. Distribute carbon copies of this selling talk to every clerk who sells on the floor.
6. Arrange for a permanent display, so that no mother or father, browsing around the store, could miss seeing the book.
   (a) Be certain that at least two copies are always on the tables among the children's books. Parents buy the books which children read, and the encyclopedia would be almost certain to catch their attention because it would seem to be out of place and because at that moment they would be thinking of children.
   (b) An additional copy or two with the reference books, dictionaries, and other encyclopedias. If there is a medical section, place a copy there, too. Clerks would be instructed to endeavor to make a sale when any parent purchased any book on child care and training.
7. Arrange a window display, getting enough copies for the purpose from the publisher, at the time the store was putting on a special effort to introduce the book to his community.
8. Ask the publisher to send copies to the editors of the woman's pages of my newspapers. (Publisher's Note: This has been done in the larger cities already, with extraordinarily excellent results in feature stories. We would be willing to cover any paper at the bookseller's request). I would try to break this publicity simultaneously with my selling efforts.
9. Ask the publisher for imprinted circulars and suggested mail order letter to cover the following groups:
   (a) All known parents on my mailing list, or among my charge customers. To this group I would offer to send out copies for a five-day examination, confident that the sale would be made, or that Junior would chew up enough pages in that period to make the book non-returnable.
   (b) Delegate the clerk to watch my daily papers for announcements of births in the city, and then circularize every father who survived the ordeal, suggesting "The Mother's Encyclopedia" as the best piece of household equipment next to a baby carriage. (Publisher's Note No. 2: A national clipping service supplied us with 52,000 new parents' names in two weeks. Having babies is really one of the nation's big industries. Even the depression hasn't affected it.)
   (c) Cover all school teachers and principals. This book ought to be in every school library, at least, and teachers as well as adolescent children could learn much from it.

(d) Other special outlets: Women's Clubs, Y.W.C.A., Y.M.C.A., Boy Scout leaders, Camp Fire Girl group guides, social workers, adult education groups, and any persons who have to do with the training of children.

10. See that the public library had a copy on the reference shelves and that the librarian knew of it, so that parents requesting advice on such book could be referred to it. This would help spread the knowledge of the encyclopedia through the community.

All of this may seem to be an extraordinary effort to put behind one book, with so many clamoring for attention every day. But I would remember that in "The Mother's Encyclopedia" I have a bread-and-butter book, unlike any other reference work, with a market that is perpetually renewing itself as boys and girls in my city grow up, marry, have children and face problems which are new and about which they can find so much information nowhere else.

If I could sell one hundred copies in the first year, by a very special effort, I know that the book would be used, read and recommended, that parents would tell others about it, and that it would become a standard item always to be carried in stock. That's the sort of book which booksellers have always found most profitable. It's the only part of our business which isn't a sheer gamble with fickle public taste.

And that's why I should give enough personal attention to a book like this to make it known to a large section of my community, through the methods outlined above.

I should give particular attention to Items 2, 6a, 8, 9a, 9b, 9c, 9d.

Every person selling in my store would know the book thoroughly, in order to be able to talk intelligently about it to prospective customers. Copies would be on constant display in at least two places, and would be replaced as fast as sold. Every logical prospect in the whole field of parenthood, child education and training, would be covered by a direct mail or phone solicitation. And the latter campaign would be tied up with publicity in my local newspaper, preferably on the woman's page, and a simultaneous window display.

But I have never sold a book to anyone! And I have never been a parent. Perhaps you who have experienced both pleasures have ideas of your own. The Publishers' Weekly would, I am sure, like to have them.

A Monumental Piece of Work

Steps in the Making of the New Merriam Webster Dictionary

WILLIAM E. HARRIS

THE TRUE CRITERION of a play is to have the stagehands praise it, and of a book to have printers speak lovingly of it. The pride, therefore, taken by C. Howard Roberts of The Riverside Press in the new Merriam-Webster dictionary (the recently issued Second Edition of the Webster's New International Dictionary), is indeed a measure of its usefulness as well as remarkable advance in format. Mr. Roberts, personnel director at the Press, was in charge of the type composition and also the special corps of men and women whose duty it was to see the book through the presses. Some of these are "dictionary people" in the best sense of the word, since they had worked on the edition a quarter of a century ago. They are unanimously agreed with Mr. Roberts that typographically speaking the Dictionary is today the finest job of its kind in the world.

The biggest problem in setting type for the new edition was condensation. Even many persons inside the booktrade fail to appreciate that the Dictionary is a brand new book from start to finish. Much of the detail work consisted in eliminating obsolete words or meanings, as well as adding new material, and then expressing the finally selected 600,000 entries in the most economical amount of type space possible. Fortunately, in Mr. Roberts' estimation, both A. G. Baker, president of G. & C. Merriam Company, and Thomas A. Knott, general editor of the Dictionary, are "type conscious" in their approach. Together with President William Allan Neilson of Smith College, editor-in-chief, who has spent one day a week for eight years helping to organize the work on the new edition, they were able to visualize every item in print, and so greatly facilitated the work done at the Press.

Having condensed the material to its smallest possible denominator compatible with intelligibility, the next task was to find a variety of type faces suited for printing it as clearly as possible. In large part these are standard faces of the Lanston Monotype Company, since it was deemed impossible to print on a slug machine. But countless new symbols and diacritical marks had to be especially cut. They were designed by the Lanston Monotype Company, usually in consultation with the printing department of H. O. Houghton & Company. Some of them had never existed in type before and were prepared from drawings. Then, too, one ordinary type card will not hold all the variations which consist of practically every known sign and some hitherto unknown, as they are expressed in terms of roman capitals, small capitals, lower-case, italic capitals, superior—not to mention antique, German and even Anglo-Saxon type. All of the chief foreign alphabets are reproduced, including the Hebrew, Arabic, Greek, Russian, German and Sanskrit, while a smaller table illustrates the contrasts found in the present English, early Latin, Western Greek, Phoenician, Egyptian hieratic, and Egyptian hieroglyphic alphabets and finally the probable phonetic values of the last of these. Mr. Roberts commented that no expense has been spared in procuring unusual type of this kind, and he thinks it would be both interesting and surprising, if a summary of all tabulated material could be shown. One of these especially is peculiarly valuable to the booktrade since it shows a full table of paper sizes.

The stress laid upon the final appearance of material in type is nowhere better illustrated than in the pronouncing biographical dictionary section. Here on a single line of type are included the person's name, the correct pronunciation in diacritical form, his chief accomplishment and the dates of his birth and death. In the case of authors the table even supplies the title of the principal work. Every page of the vocabulary is divided into three columns, while the "downstairs" portion allotted to the obscurer forms has six; yet each individual page coincides exactly, when the "upstairs" and "downstairs" sections are balanced against one another from upper left to lower right corners.

The extremely pleasing physical appropriateness to one another of the ordinary type, the bold face type and the illustrative matter, was also a problem over which the editors and Mr. Roberts labored long. The effect has been to increase greatly the speed with which separate items may be picked up by the eye and quickly digested.

Although the Dictionary has been printed in two thicknesses of paper, this does not mean so serious a problem as might at first be supposed. The Riverside Press prints the Cambridge Poets Series, and so it has had installed for some time a special India paper press, and has worked closely with the manufacturers of this machine in working out the difficulties of large scale runs. The heavier grade paper used for the regular style is one specially selected for opacity, and for lightness in bulk. Benjamin Van Wyck of the S. D. Warren Company believes that it represents a considerable improvement over the earlier edition.

Mr. Roberts is particularly proud of the way The Riverside Press has been able to meet the demand of the editors that the New International be continually kept abreast of new facts and the latest developments in science. Since the original dictionary was completed by Noah Webster in 1828, there have been ten successive complete revisions. But those do not begin to tell the whole story. Mr. Roberts states that frequently copy for the death notices crosses his desk before he reads it in his evening paper. Supplementary sections such as the one devoted to new words, which have been incorporated from time to time in the first edition of the "New International," are frequently developed. On the other hand, according to Mr. Roberts, "if something important comes along, they get it into the Dictionary itself rather than in the separate tables." Since early July when the Second Edition was published, the presses at The Riverside Press have been running practically continuously, but that after all is only the least sign of the complex problems involved in getting a new dictionary into the bookstores and onto the shelves of thousands of libraries, both public and private.

Cookery Books for Gourmets

Regional and Specialty Cook Books Have Their Place in the Well-Stocked Book Shop

H. L. RIPPERGER

Part II

WE, ON THIS SIDE of the water, are prone to divide all cooking into two groups, European and American. It has remained for Wendell Brooks Phillips to make a much finer distinction, namely, French and Arcadian. Aside from the translations of the works of such masters as Careme and Escoffier, and a few others, there are not many books in English which treat ably and adequately with French cooking. However, from the ones that do exist, I choose three. Curiously enough, they are all for the "English table," but that need not deter the shop from offering them and recommending them to American customers. The first is "French Dishes for English Tables," by La Comtesse de ——. The receipts are all good and interesting. If anything, the directions and measurements are a bit too practical and a bit too exact, which always annoys the perfect cook. But for the beginner they are excellent. Her Capucines en Surprise, which is an original cold hors d'oeuvre for which one uses "fine large nasturtium flowers," is a great find. Among the gifted writers on cookery today, the name of X. Marcel Boulestin leads all the rest. His is the facility of writing a receipt in such a fashion that its enjoyment is threefold, first in reading it, second in preparing it and third, the eating of it. He has the curious habit of supplying most of his creations with pleasant variants. There are two of his many books which I shall mention here, "A Second Helping" and "What Shall We Have To-Day?" They are equally fine, although the arrangement of the second provides more fun in the reading. His chapters on Cooks, Mistresses and Recipes and The Tricks of the Trade should be read with care and digested with thought. His book includes 365 dishes, one for each day in the year, and if his chronological order were strictly followed there would be many an occasion for wishing there were two or three Sundays in the week.

Regional Cook Books

Of the many classifications of cookery books, it is probably the regional book which is most in demand and a type more easily sold by the average bookshop. Of these, two are so well known that I need only mention their titles. They should not be missing from any cookery book shelf: "200 Years of New Orleans Cooking" and "200 Years of Charleston Cooking." An equally good and logical companion is Colquitt's "The Savannah Cook Book." The publishers will forgive me, I am sure, if I quote from Ogden Nash's preface:

> "Pilgrim's Progress is a good book, and so, I am told, is Deuteronomy, but neither is to be compared with this epic of gastronomy. . . . . .
> If you like dishes made out of a piece of lettuce and ground-up peanuts and a maraschino cherry and marshmallow whip and a banana, you will not get them in Savannah."

Before leaving the South, there are two more books worthy of consideration. The one is so perfect a thing that I wonder why it is not better known, but no doubt its first edition was to be found in every kitchen worthy of the name. I refer to "Cooking in Old Creole Days" or, giving it its true French name, "La Cuisine Créole à l'Usage des Petites Ménages." The other is Stieff's "Eat, Drink and Be Merry in Maryland." It covers a good deal of ground and has much material that is of value and interest. Years ago, Paul Elder of San Francisco occasionally turned to publishing and Clarence Edwords' "Bohemian San Francisco" was a happy contribution to the culinary field. Although it is primarily a description of San Francisco's restaurants, it is larded with many receipts so that the whole is a pleasant mixtum compositum which is certain to delight the heart and palate of the true gourmet. It is, I am afraid, now out of print but it does turn up from time to time and should not be passed over. Going to a geographic extreme, we come upon "From Cape Cod Kitchens." (I am indebted to Ellen Ennis of Lord and Taylor for bringing this to my attention and I was equally pleased to see that the Channel Bookshop is featuring it.) Compiled by the enterprising ladies of Harwichport and published by their Library Association, our world is a better place for having it. The receipts are all holographic and printed in facsimile. This gives them an intimate note which adds a good deal to their quality, for one need only read them to see how really good they are.

Specialty Cook Books

Here again, we are in a crowded field, but it is quite easy to be selective when it comes to genuine merit. Of late we have heard more and more of using herbs in cooking, and fortunately, we are becoming conscious that there are other greens besides parsley (which is only too rarely used as a seasoning in this country) to add appeal to our dishes. A manual of practical and entertaining value is "Culinary Herbs and Condiments." The shop which stocks and sells it will be conferring a boon upon its customers. Much less practical but of great interest and literary curiosity is "A Plain Plantain," beautifully printed by the Saint Dominic's Press. It has been compiled from a seventeenth century manuscript and contains wines, fruits, "picklings," cakes, puddings, etc. "Good Savouries" is divided into receipts hot and cold. The name "savoury" denotes something so typically British that we pay but little attention to books concerning the subject. But the truly wise cook will take a savoury and call it an hors d'oeuvre and there you are. Boulestin in collaboration with Adair (both names with which we are already familiar), has a book on the same subject but wisely combines the terms and calls it "Savouries and Hors D'Oeuvre." These enterprising authors have two books which can be highly recommended, "120 Ways of Cooking Eggs" and "101 Ways of Cooking Potatoes." If I seem to devote undue space to the savoury-hors d'oeuvre-canapé books, it is because they are ever popular and play such an important rôle at our cocktail parties. (It would be so much pleasanter if we went in more for sherry and less for cocktails and passed a law or devised some sort of code about the use of potato chips and Irish seaweed biscuits!) As a final suggestion, I give you "Swedish Smörgasbord" which has a hundred receipts for the famous Swedish hors d'oeuvres. Many of the tidbits are illustrated and that helps a lot. The passing of prohibition has not only inundated us with a good deal of poor liquor and high prices, but it has given us a number of books on the subject of cooking with wine. I know of none that could excel "The Wine Cook Book." The authors have gone to great pains to compile and collect the choicest receipts. Having read it from cover to cover, there is not one with which I could quarrel. Incidentally, the wise shop will point out to its customers that any number of the dishes can be prepared without the use of wine . . . but that is a matter of taste. That great English master, André L. Simon and Elizabeth Craig have penned a slight volume that deserves mention here: "Madeira—Wine, Cakes and Sauce." A good book on sandwiches needs no justification, hence I give you "Something New in Sandwiches." A very new book, which has probably not yet found the wide distribution in the trade it deserves, is "Soups and Sauces." A rather unique feature is that each receipt is followed by a menu built round it. The menus, in turn, are accompanied by wines appropriate to them. It is a satisfying little book. Finally there is Bunyard's "The Anatomy of Dessert." I warn you, and you in turn must warn your customer, that here the word is used in its especial English sense, i.e., fruits and not sweet-meats. The book is rich in wisdom and ripe in experience.

Foreign Cook Books

When we consider the question of foreign cookery books, it is usually a matter of caveat emptor. For the most part, they are written for American consumption, and it is not often that we come across a genuine work. However, I have no hesitancy in recommending the following. The first is a collective volume, its title is delightful, "The Questing Cook," and it deals with receipts Latin, Gallic, Britannic, Germanic, Scandinavian, Slavic and Oriental. I have tried practically every one of its 128 dishes and have had no fault to find with them. Two Hungarian ladies, a Mrs. Fodor and a Mrs. de Kovach, have given us an excellent little book in their "The Best Hungarian Dishes." "Two Hundred Famous Viennese Recipes" is another book of merit and interest. My copy simply bears the imprint "Printed in Boston," but as the copyright is entered in the name of Wm. Filene's Sons, the shops will know where to look for copies. "Dining and Wining in Old Russia" is an able compilation for the American reader. It contains many of the receipts that New Yorkers enjoy at the Caucasian Eagle, and it is surprising how simple they are to prepare. The book is also a fund of information on Russian customs and manners. I have hesitated about including my final selection, Margaret Redfield's "Notes on the Cookery of Tepoztlan." However, I believe that every enterprising shop should secure copies now that interest runs high in everything Mexican. The actual receipts are in vernacular Spanish, but it has much to say about tamales, moles and tortillas. In addition it gives a list of Spanish foodstuffs and their English equivalents. It should prove invaluable to the visitor to Mexico.

Price Comparisons Are Odious

In the discussions which have led to the framing of clauses for the book-trade codes, both publishers' and booksellers', there has been clear evidence of a growing conviction in the trade that sales building by price comparisons is unsound and does nothing to develop those wider markets which must be the real basis of lower prices to the public. The Trade Publishing Code, both in Sections 8 and 15, takes up that problem and legislates against price comparisons on current books and the most constructive feature of the Booksellers' Code provided for at least a breathing space for books before price comparisons entered into the selling methods. The trade has been hoping that there might be, in the calm offered by these self-regulatory rules, a chance to put forth some new and effective selling campaigns.

It is because these gains have been so hard won and are so recent that the trade has been disturbed by the sales arguments presented by the new organization, New Books, Inc. Its sales copy which has appeared in the literary supplements argues that 95 cents is the right price for new fiction or non-fiction, if you buy in a body in advance. The damage to other publishers of this campaign is that they cannot argue back in print that the $2 to $3 level has its real justification in facts, yet their every ad suffers in effect; the damage to booksellers is that they will have to do the explaining while the edition they sell bears the heaviest cost of preparation of plates; the pitfall for the consumer may be he buys sight unseen and for all the advertisements indicate he may be shipped the less successful books of the publishers' year's publications rather than the more successful.

Try a Little Understatement

Those who feel that writers of publishers' copy are sometimes reckless in the use of adjectives will note, if they read the findings of a recent survey which has been made by the Consumers' Advisory Board of the NRA, that industry as a whole has the same tendencies. In this report on twenty industries the Board recommends that a thoroughgoing study of the subject be undertaken with a view to a more uniform terminology in designating the costs and grades of merchandise. The report also suggests that the descriptions adopted should "inform consumers, not mislead them or conceal facts by piling up superlatives." The study has revealed that much of the trade terminology now in use means one thing to the seller and a different thing to the buyer, and, if the buyer takes the words at face value, he is misled into believing the goods to be one or two grades higher in quality than they are in fact. "Notwithstanding the far-reaching importance of terms from the point of view of business efficiency and fairness (especially to ultimate consumers), no significant study of the general subject has been made."

Rather humorous studies have been made of the use of adjectives in the field of book advertising, and it has been many times agreed that a little understatement might be as effective as overstatement. However, understatement is still a rare quality in advertising copy, whether it be book or any other advertising. Perhaps a little experimentation might be worth while.

Taxing the Morgan Library

UNDER THE DESPERATELY heavy pressure to find additional tax resources in New York City, the assessors have removed from the tax-free list hundreds of properties which have for many years been classified as public institutions and therefore tax-exempt. Among these was the famous Morgan Library on Madison Avenue and Thirty-Seventh Street, which was presented to the city by J. Pierpont Morgan in memory of his father.

The removal from the tax-exempt list of a library conducted as the Morgan Library is conducted is an unfair interpretation of the character of the gift, and the hearing before the assessors ought to set the matter right. The great Morgan collections are housed in this building, the greatest literary treasure house in America. In 1924 it was turned over to six trustees to be administered as a public reference library under a special act of incorporation by the New York Legislature. The building, which is one of the masterpieces of Charles F. McKim, and the contents were at that time valued at $8,500,000, but many who were familiar with the collection have estimated that the value of the gift is double that sum. Later a $1,500,000 endowment was added to provide for the maintenance of the library, and three years later another building was added, which doubled the capacity of the library and made it possible to have some public exhibits.

The stated purpose of the library is that it "be used for reference, research and study within the building by such persons as are duly accredited." This restriction is the subject of interpretation by the trustees, the chairman being Frank L. Polk, who is also chairman of the Trustees of the New York Library. If this extraordinary collection was housed inside the main building of the New York Public Library, its exclusive use for purposes of research and scholarship would not be questioned, but, housed as it is in its own building, the public comes to feel that it is being deprived of its rights and that Mr. Morgan is still using it privately. Such misunderstandings ought to be cleared up and New York's great heritage recognized for what it is.

Fewer Titles Are Kept in Print

BOOKSELLERS and librarians will need to be especially careful this fall in quoting prices and making lists, as the slowly but steadily increasing cost of book manufacture is putting many more books on the out-of-print list. The problems of the publisher in keeping his catalog complete are well known but not clearly understood. The common custom of publishers has been to plan to reprint a three years' supply when a staple book on the list goes out of print. Thus in the case of a book selling at the rate of 200 a year a small printing of 600 would be made, and even printings as low as 300 copies have been possible. With the cost of manufacturing going up, however, especially with the heavy differentials against the small runs, editions of 300 and 500 are becoming decidedly impractical. One publisher last week had a group of sixteen books brought to his desk to decide whether they should be reprinted; twelve of these could not be reprinted under present conditions.

Clubs Can't Seem to Help It

THE CURRENT NUMBER of The Book-of-the-Month Club Bulletin says in connection with its description of Wells' "An Experiment in Autobiography": Price, $3.00. "Please note: In all bookstores, on the day of publication, the retail price of this book will be $4.00. Our edition, which sells for $3.00 to Club members only, is not obtainable in bookstores." Two flings at the competitor in one paragraph and footless ones at that. The book club proprietors seem convinced that neither premiums, dividends nor advice nor all three together will hold their customers in line for renewals. They must keep hitting a bookstore as if in fear that subscribers would drift back there.

Today, and up to publication date, the Wells' book is selling at the same price, $3.00, as through the club. The low price obtained by large printings goes to all buyers. If the bookstore did not carry on after the first distribution was finished, the $3.00 price would be unacceptable for either publisher or author.

News of the Week

White House Library List Broadside Made

WHILE THE A. B. A. is planning for its presentation of new books to the White House Library a broadside listing the whole 200, in classifications, has been printed and a copy will be sent by the Association to each of its members so that they may have it for display on the day of the committee's visit to the White House in the week of October 22nd. Extra copies of the broadside for customer distribution after the event may be had at $2.00 per hundred, $15.00 per thousand by writing at once to the headquarters of the American Booksellers Association, 35 East 20th St., or to the office of the Publishers' Weekly.

All publications of the past four years, i.e. since the presentation to the White House, in Hoover's administration, of the first 500 books, have been winnowed by a committee of authors and editors under the chairmanship of E. S. McCawley, president of the A. B. A. and the resulting list of 200 will be of great interest to every reader as well as supplying an important index of the trends in publishing and writing during the past few years. The selection is intended to include the books that would be enjoyable personal reading not books of reference or research into specialized fields.

The books are now being gathered at the American Booksellers' Association offices and each is being prepared for presentation with the bookplate which was designed by The Merrymount Press. The books of thirty-four different publishers were included in the selection.

By classification the new library runs:

New Broadcast Series Will Present Literary Topics

A LITERARY BROADCAST of countrywide proportions will begin on Sunday, October 14th, from NBC headquarters at Radio City in New York, the feature to be known as "The American Fireside." Half an hour is to be devoted to this program, from 10:30 to 11 P.M. Eastern Standard Time, over the entire WJZ network.

This plan has been arranged by Sherman Mittell, organizer and director of the National Home Library Foundation, publisher of the Jacket Library Series. The hour is not to be used in promoting the Jacket Library sales, nor is that name to be mentioned, but the plan is an outcome of Mr. Mittell's enthusiasm and organizing ability.

The time to be given to this program is part of the educational time of NBC and is to be carried out with its full resources.

As a sort of host in connection with this program, Mr. Mittell has enlisted the voluntary services of an eminent New York lawyer who is to remain incognito but who is known for his ability as a public speaker and has proved his drawing power on the radio. This gentleman will be known as the "Fireside Philosopher" who will bring to the American fireside talk about books of the past and the personal presence of writers and thinkers of today. A few weeks ago this "Fireside Philosopher" was invited to talk on the Farm and Home program sponsored by the Department of Agriculture, consisting of seven minutes of discussion fitted in between hog prices and postal rates, and over 18,000 replies were received from listeners, a test of anyone's ability to interest people over the air.

The first guest at "The American Fireside" will be Dorothy Canfield Fisher, and the host will read from and discuss her books and those of others as an introduction to Mrs. Fisher's own talk. October 21st will bring Hendrik Van Loon who will take his readers back into historic times; October 28th, Norman Hapgood; on November 4th, Donald Richberg, who is to talk on the development of home libraries; November 11th, Percy Crosby; November 18th is still open, and November 25th will bring Gene Tunney.

Mr. Mittell has promises of cooperation from several national organizations, including the National Education Association (Joy Elmer Morgan is expected to be one of the speakers during the winter), the National Recreation Association, the American Country Life Association, etc. It is also certain that libraries throughout the country will cooperate.

Publishers are cooperating with Mr. Mittell in developing material for discussion, and news of the subject to be covered will be printed in the Publishers' Weekly in advance, giving booksellers opportunity to watch for the program and to cooperate toward getting widespread results in the building of home libraries.

Prize for Manuscripts of Children's Books

AN ANNUAL PRIZE for juvenile manuscripts has just been announced by the Julia Ellsworth Ford Foundation of Los Angeles. Mrs. Ford is an author, resident of New York, and has been for years particularly interested in literature for children to which she has contributed "Imagina," published in 1923, and "Snickety Nick," published in 1919. Mrs. Ford's husband, Simeon Ford, years ago was well known as the author of "A Few Remarks" and was the rival after-dinner speaker of Senator Depew. Lauren Ford, Mrs. Ford's daughter, is well known as an illustrator and is the author of "The Little Book About God" on Doubleday's fall list.

Mrs. Ford is providing $1,200 annually to be known as the Julia Ellsworth Ford Prize for stories or plays in manuscript form with the number of words unlimited. There will be six prizes, $500, $300, $200, $100 and two of $50 each. This year's judges of the manuscripts will be: Dr. Edwin Starbuck, Director of the School of Character Research, University of Southern California, chairman, Dr. Ford Piper, Iowa State University, Dr. Hardin Creig, Stanford University, Chancellor Bowman, Pittsburgh University, and Percy MacKaye.

The prize-winning stories will become the property of the Foundation and be published by it. The regular royalties will be paid to the authors. The contest closes February 1, 1935, and the prizes will be awarded at Easter.

Pulitzer Play Jury Resigns

BECAUSE RESTRICTIONS had been laid down on their editorial judgment, three critics and playwrights who have served on the Pulitzer Prize play jury for several years announced last week that they were not willing to serve again. The jury last year was overruled on its choice of "Mary of Scotland" by the Advisory Board of the School of Journalism of Columbia University, which gave the prize instead to "Men in White." The three members of that jury, Clayton Hamilton, Walter Prichard Eaton and Austin Strong, are the ones who have refused to serve again. Following the discussion over last year's disagreement, the Advisory Board announced that hereafter jurors would not select individual recipients of prizes but would hand up a list of several possibilities from which the Board could pick the winners.

A Prepublication Price of $3.00

THE RETAIL BOOKSELLERS Code Authority issues the following statement with regard to the two list prices on Wells' "Autobiography" which is the November selection of the Book-of-the-Month Club:

National Booksellers Code Authority
35 East 20th Street
New York City

"The Macmillan Company has asked the opinion of the National Booksellers Code Authority regarding the Macmillan Company's plan to publish H. G. Wells' "Experiment in Autobiography" with a publisher's published price of $3.00 prior to publication date (October 26th), and a publisher's published price of $4.00 on and after that date.

"In the opinion of the Code Authority, there is nothing in the proposed plan which violates the Booksellers Code. All booksellers must conform to the Booksellers Code and sell this title at not less than the publisher's published price, which in this case is $3.00 before publication date (October 26th) and $4.00 on and after publication date (October 26th)."

Very truly yours,
National Booksellers Code Authority.
HARRIET ANDERSON,
Secretary.

Hobby Horses

NOT FOR JUST the six days of Book Week, but permanently, the name of the children's department of the book section of Carson Pirie Scott in Chicago has been changed from The Book Shop for Boys and Girls to The Hobby Horse Book Shop. John Cole, the buyer, tells us that the department will be completely rearranged and that the emphasis will be laid on reaching the boys and girls through their own interests.

"For a long time," Mr. Cole says, "I have been of the opinion that you will never get the interest of boys and girls in bookshops unless you show in some way that you are interested in their interests. Hobbies seem to me to be the best possible key to open the door and bring boys and girls into closer contact with the bookstore and with books. If the Hobby Horse Book Shop can come to mean, eventually, to thousands of boys and girls a place that is particularly their own, then I will feel that we have accomplished something real and vital. It is very unfortunate, but, I think, true, that there are very few bookshops in this country where boys and girls can really feel at home, where they can bring their problems and their interests and obtain the information and the help they need. Bookstores have been too complacent about letting schools and libraries be the sole source of aid and assistance, and it is no wonder that it is seldom that boys and girls go into one. The fact that there is no age limit to riding hobbies also intrigued me and the fact that hobbies that are firmly rooted at an impressionable age are apt to stay with one through life makes it worthwhile not only to cultivate the hobbyist who is already well started but also to have a hand in starting the hobby interest early."

Mr. Cole plans to replace two large tables with bins underneath which are now in the department with a low round table with chairs so that there may be a place for the children to look over the books with greater comfort, and to make further changes in the shop to give it individuality and character. There is the possibility that sooner or later there will be an entire floor devoted to boys and girls, containing the toy department, a hobby shop, the Hobby Horse Book Shop, and an exhibit and lecture room.

This week and next, October 8th to 20th, a conference sponsored by the Chicago Association for Child Study and Parent Education and Carson Pirie Scott is being held at the store. The subject chosen is "You and Your Child," and the program includes such speakers as Harry A. Overstreet, Hughes Mearns and Ernest Groves. Hobbies and the use of leisure time will receive a good deal of attention and as a background there is a hobby exhibit by the Chicago Public Schools.

The Hobby Horse Book Shop issues at intervals a folder called "Notes for Your Notebook" which is made so that it may be filed in a looseleaf notebook. This carries news of books and publishers, written for children, and booklists for various ages. The second number announces a contest open to all the school-children of Chicago and vicinity for a design for a Hobby Horse trade mark, one of the few requirements being that the body of the Hobby Horse be a book.

Every week is Hobby Week at Miller's in Atlanta, Georgia. Readers of the Weekly are probably familiar with the work Miller's has done in sponsoring airplane model building in Atlanta. Minna Miller Hamilton, manager of the boys' and girls' department, writes us that right now dozens of gaily colored model airplanes are hung from the ceiling of the store, presenting a realistic spectacle as they fly back and forth, banking and turning in the ever changing currents of air, as if performing for the prospective customer. For these models belong to the members of the Atlanta Model Airplane Club, which Miller's sponsors, and when they are sold, the money helps many a boy solve the problem of pocket money. In showcases scale model airplanes and silver trophies are on display as are medals won by members of the A.M.A.C. Another part of the permanent hobby displays is an exhibit of models in replica of famous sailing ships. Last year many students carved historic ship models in connection with history projects. During Book Week, Miller's plans to offer suitable prizes for the best airplane and ship models exhibited.

John Kidd writes us from Cincinnati that there will be special displays in his children's department and in the windows of all three shops during Book Week. Exhibits of models and handicraft made by Cincinnati youngsters will be displayed, together with the proper books. In Cincinnati the Rotary Club every year fosters Boys' Hobby Week and John G. Kidd & Son always contributes books as prizes. The winners must come to the store to receive the awards.

For the past year, since Children's Book Week a year ago, the Wolff & Marx Co. in San Antonio, Texas, has been on the air each Sunday evening over a local station with a

A party celebrating Stokes & Stockell's sixth birthday and the publication of Irina Skariatina's new book "Little Era in Old Russia" was held in Stokes & Stockell's new shop on September 29th. 109 copies of the book were sold that day. Frost (a Nashville poet), and Victor Blakeslee, who is Irina Skariatina's husband program known as "Growing Up with Books and Making Use of Your Leisure Time." Each Sunday night there is a different speaker, and each discusses a topic with which he is familiar. Some of the programs have had to be repeated because of popular demand. For Book Week this year Wolff & Marx is planning a Book Essay Contest with three prizes in each of four age groups for the best essay on a book, telling why it was enjoyed, what outstanding features interested the reader and what character appealed the most and why. This essay contest is an annual feature, and has been very successful in the past. A. F. Dugosh, manager of the book department, says he has been amply repaid by the knowledge that he is assisting people to find a way to better themselves during their steadily increasing leisure time.

News From Publishers

Books by New Dealers and by critics of the New Deal are dropping in profusion from the presses these days. There is, of course, the dual selection of the Book of the Month Club of Herbert Hoover's "The Challenge to Liberty," and Henry Wallace's "New Frontiers." Glenn Frank flays the New Deal in "America's Hour of Decision" and Secretary Ickes has written "The New Democracy" which the publishers (Norton) say is charged with dynamite. Donald Richberg has three novels to his credit in the past, and one of these which did not get past its first edition when it was published some years ago is being reissued this fall by Thomas Y. Crowell. Incidentally we wonder in passing why it was that in New York the Democratic Times reviewed the Hoover book on the front page of the Book Review, while the Tribune, arch defender of Republicanism, buried it on page 10?

Viking is making sure of word of mouth advertising for "The Forty Days of Musa Dagh" by sending out 750 free copies before publication. These are being sent to reviewers, lecturers, bookstore clerks and others who read and talk about books. Copies will also be given to the first 50 persons not connected with the booktrade who write to the publishers agreeing to read and report on the book before publication. Publication will be November 30th.

Advance copies of another book will be sent out to any bookseller who wants them the first week in November. This book is Howard Spring's "Shabby Tiger" which has been postponed by Covici-Friede until January. The reason for postponement, George Joel tells us, is that Covici feels that in this book it has a potential best seller and to publish it in this crowded season would hurt its chances. Mr. Spring is well known in England as the book critic of the London Evening Standard.

As a major political event the assassination took the front pages of the newspapers away from the World's Series. Book publishers were quick to follow up the event with advertisements of books that might shed light on the affair. Harper's ran an ad in the morning papers asking "Why Was King Alexander Assassinated?" and recommending "The Native's Return" by Louis Adamic for the political and economic background of the tragedy. This was given added impetus by interviews with Adamic in both morning and evening papers. Covici Friede, which had scheduled the publication of "The Second World War" by Johannes Steel for October 18 advanced the date to the 12th. Steel has predicted that there will be war within nine months and said in his book that Jugoslavia would be one of the trouble centers.

One day last week after the 49,999th copy of "While Rome Burns" had been sold to Mercy Boyd's Bookshop in Waterbury, Conn., Harold Guinzberg, president of the Viking Press, stepped up and bought the 50,000th copy to present to the proud author, Alexander Woollcott. The sale of "While Rome Burns" in September, the seventh month of publication, was greater by 500 copies than in any month since March when the book appeared.

Harcourt announces that the monumental work of Pareto which was scheduled for publication on November 15th has been postponed until early in 1935 due to unforeseen and unavoidable delays in the reading of proof and manufacture. The subscription period and pre-publication price will be prolonged until that time.

An effecive advertisement, headed "You Feel Fit Now—Why Not Stay Fit?" appeared in the New York Times on October 1st, listing the titles of the Appleton Popular Health Books and suggesting that the benefits of a vacation might be conserved by reading these books written by physicians.

N.A.B.P. News

Several new members have been added to the list of the National Association of Book Publishers recently, D. Van Nostrand & Company being voted in at the September meeting of the Board of Directors.

F. S. Crofts has accepted the chairmanship of the college textbook group of the N.A.B.P., which meets regularly to consider the special problems of handling scientific scholarly books in the college area.

A very fine photograph of F. A. Stokes has been placed on the walls of the Directors' room of the Publishers' Association, thus adding to the collection of portraits of leaders in the industry which has been assembling there.

New Publisher

Great Neck, L. I., N. Y.—The newly organized publishing house, The Walden Press, Inc., of this city, will publish its first book, "If Tomorrow Comes," by Louis A. Reitmeister on November 15th. The firm will publish selective fiction, essays, short stories and non-fiction. Herbert Lasky is the president, and Betty Richmond the editor.

New Shops

Boston, Mass.—Frank C. Willson has opened the 3 Aces Bookshop at 111 Canal Street, near the North Station. The shop will deal in old books, magazines and prints.

Chicago, Ill.—Charles Goldman, formerly of Goldman's Book Store, from 1913 to 1932, has just opened the Broadway Wilson Book Shop at 4632 Broadway. Mr. Goldman requests second-hand and rare book dealers' catalogs.

Monroe Wheeler of Harrison of Paris, which has established a New York office at 362 Fifth Ave. and will produce titles in America as well as abroad. The first title will be "Hacienda" by Katherine Anne Porter coming October 25

Chicago, Ill.—Mrs. Maud Josaphare, book critic for Station WCFL, has opened a rental library in the Allerton Hotel, 701 North Michigan Avenue. The hotel is a centre of downtown collegiate activities, and Mrs. Josaphare talks to the guests on the new books the first Tuesday of each month.

Morgantown, West Va.—George Healey's Book Shop has recently been opened across the street from the University of West Virginia campus. It is operated by W. Ralph Headler and George Harris Healey.

Changes in Management

New York City—Benjamin Duckman is now the sole owner of the New Deal Book Store at 5 East 14th Street. He requests publishers' and dealers' catalogs.

Changes in Address

New York City—The Argosy Book Stores, Inc. have moved to 114 East 59th Street. The new telephone number is Plaza 3-8868.

New York City—C. Tybrowski, bookseller, has moved from 706 Courtlandt Avenue to 893 Morris Avenue.

John O'Connor

Mr. O'Connor is chairman of the Temporary Code Authority for Subscription and Mail Order Publishers and was a member of the Publishers' Code Committee which brought the codes to completion

Subscription Code Organization

THE PERMANENT Code Authority of nine members for the Division of Subscription and Mail Order Publishers will be elected by a ballot which will close November 5th.

The ballot is being prepared after a meeting of the Temporary Code Authority in Chicago, October 9th, called by Chairman John O'Connor. There will be twenty candidates on the ballot nominated by the joint action of two committees representing the Eastern and Western Sections of the publishing group.

The full text of the Subscription and Mail Order Code is printed in this issue, beginning on the following page. In the issue of October 27th the Bible and Medical Publishers' Codes will be printed.

Dodd, Mead Takes Over Series of Handicraft Books

BY AN ARRANGEMENT with Harcourt, Brace & Co., Dodd, Mead has taken over the publication of the books of Edwin T. Hamilton, who is well known from his work in the field of handicraft and allied arts. Four titles already published by Harcourt will appear hereafter under the Dodd, Mead imprint and additional books by Mr. Hamilton are scheduled for publication in the spring. The four already published titles are "Complete Aircraft Manual," "Handicraft for Girls," "The Boy Builder" and "Prizes and Presents Every Girl Can Make." These are the initial volumes in a series which will eventually cover the entire field of home arts and crafts for boys, girls and adults. Mr. Hamilton has a workshop in which he tries out all his schemes before including them in his books and where he personally builds his models before photographing them.

Pamphlet Age Predicted

IN AN ADDRESS at the New York Library Association Conference at Lake Mohonk, N. Y., two weeks ago, James S. Stanley, president of the Leisure League of America, predicted that a mass pamphlet age will be brought about by the adoption of modern merchandising practice to paper-covered volumes and will bring with it a brand new type of reader. Mr. Stanley's assertion was based on a ten-months' nationwide experiment which the League has been making in pamphlet production, with the Leisure League Little Books. Mr. Stanley also explained the function of the League as a means of suggesting and devising methods of utilizing leisure time in America. There will be an exposition of leisure time pursuits in New York City next May, in which collaboration of hobby, collectors' sports, travel and community organizations is to be developed.

A sidelight on Mr. Stanley's prediction about pamphlets is the fact that the John Day Company will issue Number 45 of the John Day Pamphlets on October 18th. It will be "Move the Goods!" by Stuart Chase.

Targ Offers Essay Prize

WILLIAM TARG, Bookseller, of Chicago, has announced a prize contest with a $50 award for the best 10,000-word essay on "The Book Collecting Hobby." The essay must deal exclusively with the subject of book collecting from the standpoint of rare books and fine editions and is open to anyone except members of the firm of William Targ. This contest is especially timely with the N.A.B.P. sponsoring a Children's Book Week centered about hobby shows for children. Full details of the contest may be secured from William Targ, 104 West Chicago Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

Divisional Code E

Subscription and Mail Order Book Publishing Division

TO EFFECTUATE the policies of Title I of the National Industrial Recovery Act, this Divisional Code is established as a Supplemental Code of Fair Competition for the Subscription and Mail Order Book Publishing Division of the Book Publishing Industry, pursuant to the provisions of the Basic Code of Fair Competition for the said Book Publishing Industry approved by the President of the United States on October 1, 1934. All provisions of the said Basic Code which are not in conflict with the provisions of this Divisional Code are hereby specifically incorporated by reference in this Divisional Code and made a part hereof. Such provisions of the Basic Code with the supplementing provisions of this Code are the standards of fair competition for, and are binding upon every member of the said Subscription and Mail Order Book Publishing Division of the Book Publishing Industry.

Article I—Definitions

SECTION 1. The term "Subscription and Mail Order Book Publishing Division," as used herein, includes the publication, contracting with authors for the publication of, acquiring copyrights or salesrights of, contracting for the printing and binding of, or in any way reproducing for sale, and/or selling any book or set of books, at least sixty per cent (60%) of the sales of which by any member of the Division, during the calendar year prior to membership under this Code, were made by outside salesmen direct to the buyer, and/or by mail.

SECTION 2. The term "Division" as used herein, includes all members of the Division.

SECTION 3. The term "Trade Book," as used herein, means and includes, an edition of any book manufactured or published for sale by bookstores. It does not include, however, editions of trade books manufactured for sale as the regular monthly selection of a book club, or editions manufactured and published exclusively for distribution by members of the Division.

SECTION 4. The terms "Subscription" and/or "Mail Order Book," as used herein, mean and include an edition of any book manufactured or published primarily for sale by outside salesmen and/or by mail, direct to the ultimate consumer, not for resale.

Article II—Organization, Powers and Duties of the Code Authority

SECTION 1. A Code Authority shall be established to consist of nine (9) members, at least one (1) of whom shall be an executive of a Mail Order Publisher, and at least one (1) of whom shall be an executive of a Book Club. The Members of the Code Authority shall be selected in the manner following:

(a) Within twenty (20) days after the effective date hereof, the code sponsors, who are hereby constituted a Temporary Code Authority for that purpose, shall conduct the first election for members of the permanent Code Authority. They shall appoint a nominating committee consisting of ten (10) persons who shall be executives of members of the Division, none of whom shall be a member of the Temporary Code Authority. Such nominating committee shall, by vote of at least seven (7) of its members, designate as candidates for the office of Code Authority Member, twenty (20) persons employed in executive capacities by members of the Division. Said nominees shall be fairly representative of large and small publishers and of other groups in the Division. The Temporary Code Authority shall cause ballots to be prepared containing the names of the twenty (20) nominees selected by the nominating committee, with blank spaces for nine (9) additional names. Opposite the name of each nominee on such ballots there shall be placed the name of the concern with which he may be identified. No one member of the Division, including subsidiaries and/or affiliates thereof, shall have more than one (1) member either on the nominating committee or among the nominees, or upon the Code Authority.

(b) Said ballots shall be forwarded under registered cover to all ascertainable members of the Division at least fifteen (15) days, but not more than twenty-five (25) days, before the date designated for the counting of votes.

(c) In the election of members of the Code Authority, each member of the Division shall be entitled to cast one (1) vote for each office; provided that the majoriy of the votes cast for each office shall represent companies whose total volume of gross receipts was more than one-half (½) of the total volume of gross receipts of the Division in the calendar year next preceding the date of the election.

(d) Votes may be cast either for any nominee proposed by the nominating committee or for the voter's individual choice.

(e) Members of the Code Authority shall hold office for one (1) year, and until their successors are duly elected and qualified.

(f) All elections after the first shall be conducted by the Code Authority then in office in accordance with the foregoing provisions, except that all such elections shall be held within the month preceding the date of expiration of such Code Authority's term of office.

(g) If the Code Authority shall deem it necessary, after the first election in order to give equitable representation to any Member or Members of the Division, to provide for the weighting of votes by volume of gross receipts, or otherwise, it shall prepare a plan of voting designed to effect such equitable representation, and shall afford to each Member of the Division adequate opportunity to object, in writing, to such plan of voting. Upon approval by the Administrator of any plan of voting so prepared, such plan of voting shall be followed in lieu of the procedure outlined in (b) of this Section.

SECTION 2. In addition to membership as above provided, there may be one (1) member, without vote, to be known as Administration Member, to be appointed by the Administrator to serve for such term as the Administrator may specify, without expense to the Division.

Article III—Trade Practice Rules

RULE 1. No Member of the Division shall list any name as editor, or contributing editor in such manner as to practice deception on the public.

RULE 2. No Member of the Division shall use only the last date of copyright and/or eliminate the first copyright date.

RULE 3. No member of the Division shall designate any edition of any subscription and/or mail order book as "teachers' edition," "school edition," "project edition" or any other edition title unless such edition title accurately represents a difference in textual content from the edition of the same book which is most widely offered for sale.

RULE 4. No member of the Division shall, with intent to deceive the public, use or imitate in his business a competitor's exclusive trade name or trade names.

RULE 5. No Member of the Division shall list in any book or hold out to the public, either in any form of advertising or by representations of salespeople, the name of any editor, contributing editor, contributor, reviewer, or revisor, for the purpose of confusing or deceiving the buyer as to the extent of the contribution to, or the responsibility of the editor, contributing editor, contributor, reviewer, or revisor, for any particular article or department.

RULE 6. No Member of the Division shall use the signature or the initials of a person under an article which is the same, or essentially the same, as appeared in a previous edition over the signature or initials of another.

RULE 7. No Member of the Division shall use advertising or other representation which refers inaccurately in any material part to any competitors, or their publications, prices, values, credit terms, policies, or selling methods.

RULE 8. No Member of the Division shall publish advertising (whether printed, radio, display, or of any other nature), which is misleading or inaccurate in any material particular, nor shall any member in any way misrepresent any goods (including but without limitation their use, copyright, grade, quality, quantity, origin, size, substance, character, nature, finish, material, content, or preparation) or credit terms, values, policies, services, or the nature or form of the business conducted.

RULE 9. No Member of the Division shall use destructive advertising, nor through the representations of salespeople or otherwise bring to the notice of any buyer, or prospective buyer, statements including comparisons of competing book publications stated to be based on surveys, questionnaires, or other forms of investigation, unless the agencies employed to conduct such surveys, questionnaires, or investigations are accurately described at the same time and in the same place as the results of such surveys, questionnaires or investigations, nor unless such surveys, questionnaires, or investigations were conducted by impartial agencies not associated in any way with the member advertising or making public the results of such surveys, questionnaires or investigations. Nothing in this rule shall prevent any member from making or having made such surveys, questionnaires or investigations as he may desire by any agency of his choosing, provided that in any advertising or other communication to buyers of the results of such surveys, questionnaires, or investigations the origination thereof by the member advertising or otherwise communicating to the buyers the results of such surveys, questionnaires, or investigations shall be clearly set forth and not in any way concealed or disguised.

RULE 10. No Member of the Division shall attempt to induce the breach of an existing contract between a competitor and his employee or customer or source of supply; nor shall any member interfere with or obstruct the performance of such contractual duties or services.

RULE 11. No Member of the Division shall pay any bonus or allow any employee or representative to pay any bonus to any salesperson or other employee of another member, for the purpose of inducing such salesperson or other employee to leave the employ of any member and enter that of the member offering or paying such bonus.

RULE 12. No Member of the Division shall secure agents or prospective agents by misleading or dishonest promises or guarantees or failure to explain in advance the conditions under which the guarantee is to be paid, or entice away the agents of competitors by such means.

RULE 13. No Member of the Division shall give, permit to be given, or offer to give, anything of value for the purpose of influencing or rewarding the action of any employee, agent or representative of another in relation to the business of the employer of such employee, the principal of such agent, or the represented party, without the knowledge of such employer, principal, or party. This provision shall not be construed to prohibit free and general distribution of articles commonly used for advertising, except so far as such articles are actually used for commercial bribery as hereinabove defined.

RULE 14. No Member of the Division shall represent books that are bound in substitutes for leather as being bound in levant, or in any way which tends to carry the inference that leather bindings are used.

RULE 15. No Member of the Division shall sell simultaneously the same or essentially the same, set of books under different titles, or under any title that misleads as to content, or that tends to confuse with some previously published work.

RULE 16. No Member of the Division shall use the so-called "raised" contract by marking up the price of books, or represent that the price asked is below the usual price, or that the price will be increased, when such is not the fact.

RULE 17. No Member of the Division shall offer an extension, a revision or a continuation of service, where the contract made with the purchaser does not state precisely what the service is; and no Member of the Division shall fail to furnish such service to subscribers as promised without additional cost to the subscribers, unless such additional cost is stated in the contract.

RULE 18. No Member of the Division shall advertise or represent to purchasers or prospective purchasers of any book or set of books, that they are only buying or paying for the supplements or services, or that purchasers are only buying or paying for services to be rendered by a research or other bureau, when such is not a fact.

RULE 19. No Member of the Division shall represent that a certain number of books have been set aside for advertising purposes to be given free, when such is not a fact; and no Member of the Division shall represent that a certain number of selected persons in each community have been designated by a member of the division to secure a book or set of books or any form of service free, when such is not a fact.

RULE 20. No Member of the Division shall offer membership in societies, clubs, and other organizations which in fact do not exist, in connection with the sale of books; and where a service devoted to the answering of inquiries is offered, no Member of the Division shall represent it as a service offered by some organization separate and apart from the concern selling books, when such organization does not exist in fact, and/or actually does not render such service; and no Member of the Division shall use the names of well-known authors, editors or authorities in connection with such offers where such persons do not actually answer or supervise the answering of inquiries.

RULE 21. No Member of the Division shall allow any salesperson to represent to any buyer, or prospective buyer, that the books offered by such salesperson are a specific professional help, published especially for teachers, or especially for any profession, or that the contents of such books deal mainly, or in any major part, with the technique or practice of any profession as distinguished from the subject matter taught, when such is not the fact.

RULE 22. No Member of the Division shall directly or indirectly make contribution to, or become a member of any public or quasi-public organization whose functions, or the functions of any sub-division thereof, include the purchase or the recommendation for purchase of the publications of any of the Members of the Division.

RULE 23. No Member of this Division or his employee or representative shall directly or indirectly pay any compensation, bonus, or commission, or make any gift to any librarian, teacher, school official, government or officer of a Parent-Teachers Association, or to any employee of a library, school, political subdivision, or government department, or to any person, for the purpose of securing recommendations and/or influencing sales; provided, however, that this rule shall not be construed to mean that any member of the division shall be prevented from employing the classes of persons mentioned herein when such employment is for full time during their vacation periods, nor shall it prevent the employment of such persons as bona fide contributors or editors.

RULE 24. Members of the Division who may at any time offer for sale any trade books as defined in Section 3 of Article I of this Code shall be bound as to the sale of such trade books by the provisions, other than administrative provisions, of the Code for Retail Booksellers as approved April 13, 1934; provided, however, that this rule shall bind the members of the division only within the limits of the definition of trade books as contained in Section 5 of Article I.

RULE 25. No Member of the Division shall use any advertising and/or selling methods which tend to deceive or mislead the prospective purchaser.

Obituary Notes

ARCHIBALD MARSHALL

ARCHIBALD MARSHALL, British novelist, died at Cambridge, England, on September 29th at the age of 68. After his graduation from Cambridge he studied for the clergy but gave it up and entered business. He finally gave that up and became a newspaper correspondent during the War. On his return he worked as an editor and finally when he was 33 he brought out his first novel, "Peter Binney, Undergraduate," which proved to be the forerunner of some thirty others, of which the best known are "Exton Moor," "The Graftons," "The Hall and the Grange," "The Eldest Son," and "The Squire's Daughter." His last novel, "The Claimants," was published in March of this year. Mr. Marshall was one of the founders of the publishing house of Alston Rivers, which issued as its first publication in 1905 the second of Mr. Marshall's books, "The House of Merrilees." He was often compared with Anthony Trollope.

EDMUND G. GRESS

EDMUND G. GRESS, editor from 1915 to 1930 of The American Printer, died on September 30th at Floral Park, Long Island, at the age of 62. He was born in Easton, Pa., and started a printing career as an office boy. Coming to New York in 1933 to direct the composing room of The American Printer, he served as a writer of special articles and as editor did much to serve the whole industry. He was an early and active member of the American Institute of Graphic Arts and long served as chairman of the Committee on Keepsakes.

Mr. Gress was the author of "American Manual of Typography," 1905; "Type Designs in Color," 1908; "Art and Practice of Typography," 1910, rev. 1917; "Fashions in American Typography 1780-1930," 1931.

EDWARD C. ROBINSON

EDWARD C. ROBINSON, for fifty-one years with the Houghton Mifflin Company, died on October 5th at the age of 74. Directly after his graduation from Colby College in 1883, he joined the company and was employed there up to the time of his death.

WILLIAM B. PARKER

WILLIAM B. PARKER, editor, writer and literary adviser, died on October 6th at the age of 63. Mr. Parker was successively associate editor of the Atlantic Monthly, literary adviser to Houghton Mifflin Co., instructor in English at Harvard and lecturer in English at Columbia. He was joint editor of "Letters and Addresses of Thomas Jefferson" and author of "Life of Edward Rowland Sill," "The Wisdom of Emerson," and editor of "Lowell's Anti-Slavery Papers."

THIS LIST aims to be a complete and accurate record of American book publication. Publishers should send copies of all books promptly for annotation and entry, and the receipt of advance copies insures record simultaneous with publication. The annotations are descriptive, not critical; intended to place, not to judge the books. Pamphlet material and books of lesser trade interest are listed in smaller type.

The entry is transcribed from the title-page when the book is sent for record. Prices are added except when not supplied by publisher or obtainable only on specific request, in which case the word "apply" is used. When not specified the binding is "cloth."

Imprint date or copyright date is always stated, except when imprint date and copyright date agree and are of the current year, in which case only "c" is used. No ascertainable date is designated thus: [n. d.]

Sizes are indicated as follows: F (folio: over 30 centimeters high); Q (4to: under 30 cm.); O (8vo: 25 cm.); D (12mo: 20 cm.); S (16mo: 17½ cm.); T (24mo: 15 cm.); sq., obl.. nar., designate square, oblong, narrow.

★ indicates a translation from a foreign language, a key used at the request of the International Institute of Intellectual Cooperation of the League of Nations.

OLD & RARE BOOKS

FREDERICK M. HOPKINS

WITH HEAVY TAXATION threatening to bring many valuable books and manuscripts in Great Britain into the auction room in the years after the World War, an organization was formed in 1931 known as Friends of the National Libraries, whose principal task was to try and prevent the export of literary treasures to the United States that should remain in the British Isles. Sir Frederick Kenyon, for many years director and principal librarian of the British Museum, was the first chairman of this organization, which was strongly supported by Ramsay MacDonald and Stanley Baldwin. The need of this organization is not as great for the last two or three years as it was for the years immediately preceding its formation. The exportation of rare books to the United States has dropped to a low level for the year 1934. Few booksellers took their annual trip to London last summer, and the unfavorable exchange and high London prices have nearly brought the sale of rare and valuable English books to the American trade to a standstill.

THE LAST ISSUE of the Bulletin of the Grosvenor Library, of Buffalo, No. 4 of Vol. 16, contains a list of "Pamphlets and Books Printed in Buffalo Prior to 1850, being a Supplement to the list compiled by Dr. F. H. Severance and published in the Buffalo Historical Society Publications" by Douglas C. McMurtrie. In an introductory note Mr. McMurtrie says: "One of the good bibliographies of local imprints is that of Frank H. Severance entitled 'Books and Pamphlets Printed in Buffalo Prior to 1850,' which appeared as an appendix to the sixth volume of the 'Buffalo Historical Society Publications' dated 1903. In this volume the list of imprints occupied 51 pages, running to a total of 300 titles. The imprints are fully though not exhaustively described. Severance had, of course, as secretary of the Buffalo Historical Society, unusual opportunities to do well such a piece of work. Of course, many were in the Buffalo Historical Society, but many were not." This new supplement contains 44 octavo pages and items located in 36 collections and libraries in the United States and Canada. It makes therefore a very substantial addition to the Severence bibliography. This issue of the Bulletin includes only the McMurtrie supplement, with title-page, so that the cover or wrapper may be removed by those wanting to make it a bound pamphlet, supplementary to the Severance bibliography.

MORE THAN 500 VOLUMES which originally formed a part of the library of Napoleon Bonaparte have just been presented to Princeton University by André de Coppet, a Princeton graduate. Uniformly bound in red morocco and stamped in gold, the books are largely literary or historical, though they illustrate as well Napoleon's interest in horticulture, travel, biography, and the life, manners and geography of other countries. Books on Africa, India, Asia, North America and the countries of Europe show Napoleon's interest in other lands. The collection contains a number of works on Henry IV, King of France, and on Frederick the Great, dominant historical figure in whom Napoleon had a keen interest. The library was returned to Marie Louise, who helped to select many of the books, by the victorious allies during the Paris negotiations. Trace of it was lost for nearly a century thereafter until it was discovered in Germany a few years ago. That part of the collection which has not been presented to Princeton was purchased and given to the French government by an English donor.

CATALOG No. 232, "Rare Books and First Editions," just issued by Goodspeed's Book Shop, of Boston, in addition to many desirable American and English modern first editions, contains two timely collections relating to celebrated forgers of earlier days, Thomas Chatterton and William Ireland. The Chatterton collection contains twenty-nine volumes of early editions of Chatterton and books and pamphles relating to him, priced at $125. The Ireland collection of books and pamphlets by and relating to the Shakespearean forger comprises twelve lots, $40. There is a list of "dollar firsts," "all in the original bindings and in good condition unless otherwise noted," comprising about 200 items, that includes some good books at bargain prices, including such authors as Alice Brown, Burroughs, Carman, Higginson, Howells, Stockton and Mary E. Wilkins.

THE FIRST SALE of the season was held by Charles F. Heartman, of Metuchen, N. J., on September 13th, when a collection of pamphlets collected from the standpoint of Daniel Defoe, the journalist, fetched $625. On the same date, another sale of some interesting and important Americana and some fine bindings and extra-illustrated books was held, and Mr. Heartman says that, considering this sale was held early in the season, the result was highly satisfactory. While some historical tracts sold cheap, others brought good prices and some higher prices than ever before. He is of the opinion that we have no reason to feel pessimistic about the new season.

WILLIAM REITZEL, Haverford College, Pa., is completing a collection of the letters of William Cobbett, the political economist. Information concerning any letters now in private or public collections in the United States will be appreciated. In particular, Mr. Reitzel desires information from the present owner or owners of a collection of twenty-six letters to John Morgan of Philadelphia. This series, running from November 5, 1804, to December 23, 1819, is known to have been in possession of Nathan Jones of 85 Union Street, Philadelphia, in November, 1852.

REASSURED BY THE ATTENTION given to the first lot of the sale of the Terry Library last year, the American Art Association-Anderson Galleries looks with confidence to wide public attention to part 2 of this famous collection, which will be put on sale next month. The public exhibit will begin on October 13. Among other items are fine specimens from the early presses of Mainz, Rome, Venice and earlier, including three leaves from the Gutenberg Bible bearing the epistle of Paul to the Ephesians, a set of the Shakespeare Folios, an important Irving collection, and valuable books by early Americans.

The Weekly Book Exchange

How to use Books Wanted and Books For Sale

TERMS: "Books Wanted" and "Books for Sale," 15c. a line. No charge for address.

The first-named is for booksellers, publishers and libraries only; the second is open to individuals also. Both departments are for subscribers' use only.

All other classifications 20c. a line. Bills rendered monthly.

Write plainly on one side of paper. The Weekly is not responsible for typographical errors. Illegible "wants" ignored. Each title must begin on a separate line except grouped titles by one author. Objectionable books excluded when noted. If books wanted were originally published in a foreign language, state whether original or translation is desired.

In answering state edition, condition and price including transportation.

Give your name and address.

Credit responsibility of advertisers is not guaranteed but space in the columns will be denied to dealers who misuse it. Pay for your purchases promptly to preserve credit standing. Copy closes Monday noon.

"American Book Prices Current, An Index to Sales for the Seven Years from 1916 to 1922," original price, $30, special price to close, $3. "American Book Prices Current" was indexed only for this one span of years, and the project proved too expensive for continuation. These volumes were taken over by the Bowker Company from E. P. Dutton & Company. The book gives title, author and correct date for over 50,000 books, and has been used by some libraries as a volume by which to make available to the general public information as to which books come under the classification of rarity. Only a few copies are available at this price.

R. R. BOWKER CO., NEW YORK

STATEMENT OF THE OWNERSHIP, MANAGEMENT, CIRCULATION, ETC., REQUIRED BY THE ACT OF CONGRESS OF MARCH 3, 1933,

Of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, published weekly at Camden, N. J., for October 1, 1934.

STATE OF NEW YORK, ss.

COUNTY OF NEW YORK,

Before me, a Notary Public in and for the State and County aforesaid, personally appeared John A. Holden, who, having been duly sworn according to law, deposes and says that he is Secretary of the R. R. Bowker Co., publishers of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, and that the following is, to the best of his knowledge and belief, a true statement of the ownership, management, etc., of the aforesaid publication for the date shown in the above caption, required by the Act of March 3, 1933, embodied in section 537, Postal Laws and Regulations printed on the reverse of this form, to wit:

1. That the names and addresses of the publisher, editor, managing editor, and business manager are:

Publisher . . . . . R. R. BOWKER CO.
62 West 45th St., New York.
Editor . . . . . F. G. MELCHER.
62 West 45th St., New York.
Managing Editor . . . . . MILDRED C. SMITH.
62 West 45th St., New York.
Business Manager . . . . . ALBERT R. CRONE.
62 West 45th St., New York.

2. That the owners are:

R. R. BOWKER CO., 62 West 45th St., New York.
MARIAN A. OSBORNE, Haverford, Pa.
J. A. HOLDEN, 62 West 45th St., New York.
F. G. MELCHER, 62 West 45th St., New York.
A. R. CRONE, 62 West 45th St., New York.
A. C. FRASCA, 62 West 45th St., New York.
MILDRED C. SMITH, 62 West 45th St., New York.
L. C. GREENE, 62 West 45th St., New York.

3. That the known bondholders, mortgagees, and other security holders owning or holding 1 per cent or more of total amount of bonds, mortgages, or other securities are: NONE.

4. That the two paragraphs next above, giving the names of the owners, stockholders, and security holders, if any, contain not only the list of stockholders and security holders as they appear upon the books of the company but also in cases where the stockholder or security holder appears upon the books of the company as trustee or in any other fiduciary relation, the name of the person or corporation for whom such trustee is acting, is given; also that the said two paragraphs contain statements embracing affiant's full knowledge and belief as to the circumstances and conditions under which stockholders and security holders who do not appear upon the books of the company as trustees, hold stock and securities in a capacity other than that of a bona fide owner; and this affiant has no reason to believe that any other person, association, or corporation has any interest direct or indirect in the said stock, bonds, or other securities than as so stated by him.

JOHN A. HOLDEN, Secretary.

Two Out of Three Book Buyers

Prefer

The New York Times Book Review

FOURTEEN book publishers cooperated in a survey among definite buyers of books. Specific information was sought as to the literary publications preferred. Return cards were inserted in books by twelve publishers. Two distributed the cards with invoices to book purchasers.

Cards, returned from every State, tabulated by the Recording & Statistical Corporation, numbered 3,682.

This survey discloses that The New York Times Book Review reaches two out of three book buyers—83 per cent more actual purchasers than any other literary publication. It is first choice among the customers of each of the participating publishers. It is first choice in the nine cities leading in book sales.

Preferences of the 3,682 book buyers who replied to the questionnaires are as follows:

The New York Times Book Review	2,457
Atlantic Monthly	1,345
Harper's Magazine	1,191
Herald Tribune Books	1,131
Saturday Review of Literature	841
Scribner's	725
The Nation	608
Current History	571
The Forum	506
New Republic	488
American Mercury	397

Participants in the survey were:

John Day Company
Dodd, Mead and Company
E. P. Dutton and Company
Farrar and Rinehart
Harper and Brothers
Harrison Smith and Robert Haas
Henry Holt and Company
Houghton Mifflin Company
Little, Brown and Company
Longmans, Green and Company
Macaulay Company
Macmillan Company
Oxford University Press
Vanguard Press

A booklet giving the complete details of this survey will be sent on request to Advertising Department The New York Times.

In 9 months, 1934, The New York Times published 384,915 lines of book advertising—a greater volume weekdays and Sundays than any other newspaper, and a gain of 118,510 lines over the corresponding months of 1933.
